Overview of TDI Exports from China, Japan and South Korea

2017-09-01

From the two charts above, we can see that South Korea sees satisfactory growth of exports, exporting more than 150,000 tonnes of TDI in the first half of this year. The exports may exceed 300,000 tonnes throughout the year, which is mainly a result of the closure of a facility by MCNS Japan last year. As for Japan, MCNS facilities now focus more on the domestic supply. Foreign supply aims at maintaining the basic supply to satisfy the demand of Asian countries and regions. Many trading firms that previously distributed its TDI now have tight supply of goods, thus having to turn to China and South Korea...More
